New York, Nov. S. - Gen. ecial Dispatch to the Evening Star. St. PAUL, MINN., Nov. 8-Republican papers today are absolutely non-committal on result of the election, not venturing on a single local prediction. The state committee is badly frightened for the result of the election, and many are found who think the real contest is between democrats and populists.

Democratic papers claim everything in sight. The Globe (democratic) this morning says: "The Globe believes that Daniel W. Lawler will be elected governor of Minnesota today. The total vote of the state will be about 290,000 and of this Mr. Lawler will receive about 110,000. which is the number Eugene Wilson received when he ran for same office four years ago. In this city the polls will be open until 7 p.m. and it may take twenty-four hours to count the entire national, state and county bal-lots. The returns will not be sent in until the entire three tickets is completed. At republican headquarters it is claimed that five of the republican candidates for Congress will be elected and that the legislature will be republican. They also are confident that the nine Harrison presidential electors will be elected regardless of the fusion.

In the Interior of Massachusetts. WORCESTER, MASS., Nov. 8 .- The vote cast up to noon is tremendous, being in most precincts a large percentage of the registry. The weather is favorable to a large vote, for the day is perfect. There have been no disturbances and but few challenges. The manufac-turers shut down between 11 and 1 o'clock. SPRINGFIELD. RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 8.—The election is pro-

The democrats claim they will re-elect Wise, democrat, by 3,500 majority over W. E. Grant, the third party nominee, and say that the colored voters are taking but little interest in the election.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 8.—The rain storm of retard voting today in the county, ceased be-fore dawn and the sun shone bright this morning. Over half the registration was polled by 11 o'clock. The republicans are veting right along for third party Congressman. There is an assured majority in the county of 300 for the democrats. Slow Returns on Account of the Australian Ballot-Some Details of the Vote. Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

Russell will run ahead of his ticket and carry the state are numerous today, but it seems doubtful if they are fulfilled. The polls closed here at 4:30 and the returns from the precincts are just coming in. They show surprisingly little cutting so far, Haile's vote being substantially the same as Harrison's, and Cleveland and Russell standing side by side. For example, precinct 3, ward 6, gave Cleveland 245, Russell 244, Haile 111, Harrison 110. Ward 16, precinct 2, gave Cleveland 155, Harrison 278, Russell 172, Haile 256. Ward 4, New Bedford, was one of the earliest returns in and this made substantially the same relative showing. Harrison has 375, Cleveland 215, Haile 338, Russell 232. In 1888 Harrison had 382, Cleveland 151e In the vote for governor over last year, the republican gain is 81, the democratic. These figures may not be sufficient to base any prophecy upon, but they, with others of a similar tenor, do not indicate that Russell will say 10 000c recovery band of Cleve. Russell will run 10,000 or more ahead of Cleve-land, and while the democratic candidate for President is defeated the democrats claim that President is defeated the democrats claim that Lodge's plurality will be cut from 4,000 to 2,000. The returns from Hopedale, the home of Gen. Draper, Mr. Williams' opponent is, Gen. Draper, 235; Williams, 42. Voting in Rhode Island is progressing very quietly, but a heavy vote is to be polled. The republicans will carry the state, but the democrats are fully sure of re-electing Col. Lapham to Congress. The vote for electors will be counted first, but owing to the Australian ballot it is not thought that the vote on President will be known until midnight and the congressional figures will be even later. and the congressional figures will be even later The Australian ballot will cause slow returns i all the New England states. Their nominees were weak, and that party has daily lost votes and will not poll over 20,000 votes, of which only 15,000 will be drawn from the democratic party. The democrats nominated a strong state ticket, headed by Elias Carr, twice president of the state alliance. It is stronger than the Cleveland vote, and will have 20,000 majority. party and resent the effort or republican leaders to carry them into that party for local officers. The republicans gave such long encouragement to the people's party that they are poorly organized as a whole, though well organized in the fifth, eighth and ninth districts. They will lose as much by coquetting with the people's party as the democrats will by defection to that party. The democrats will, for the first time, send a solid delegation to Congress. CONFLICTS OF AUTHORITY,

"There is some prospect of Harrison's getting the electoral vote of North Carolina. The state republican ticket will be counted out. As to Congressman, Cheatham in the second district, Settle in the fifth, Wilcox in the eighth and Pritchard in the ninth, all republicans, stand good chances of election. The other districts will go democratic, save possibly the fourth, where Stroud, the third party candidate, may get in. The legislature will probably be antidemocratic. What is the outlook is that the people's party and republicans will have a good majority. The third party will poll a far larger vote than the democrate believe possible."

At democratic headquarters it is said that the republicans are trading with the populists, offering votes for legislative tickets, county officers and even Congressmen for votes for Harrison. The third party, it is alleged, has of course no hope and is quite ready for a trade.

At many places in the state there was a suspension of business today. The democrats placed much reliance upon the vote of the towns.

Republican State Chairman Faves said last night that he felt sure Harrison would get North Carolina's vote. He certainly did not appear sanguine as to the state ticket. He renewed the statement that the legislature would be anti-democratic, and said again he had not heard that Clarke, republican, had withdrawn in the

It is claimed by some democrats that the negro vote in this election really amounts to very little. The republicans in some cases have distrusted the black voters, and say a number will vote for the third party state ticket. They will not admit that over 5 per cent of them will fail to vote for Harrison.
